Management is responsible for the preparation and presentation of this interim consolidated financial information in accordance with the accounting policies as described in Note 2 to the interim consolidated financial information. Our responsibility is to express a conclusion on this interim consolidated financial information based on our review.

Scope of review

We conducted our review in accordance with International Standard on Review Engagements 2410, "Review of interim financial information performed by the independent auditor of the entity". A review of interim consolidated financial information consists of making inquiries, primarily of persons responsible for financial and accounting matters, and applying analytical and other review procedures. A review is substantially less in scope than an audit conducted in accordance with International Standards on Auditing and consequently does not enable us to obtain assurance that we would become aware of all significant matters that might be identified in an audit. Accordingly, we do not express an audit opinion.

Conclusion

Based on our review, nothing has come to our attention that causes us to believe that the accompanying interim consolidated financial information is not prepared, in all material respects, in accordance with the accounting policies as described in Note 2 to this interim consolidated financial information.

Emphasis of matter - Basis of preparation

We draw attention to Note 2 to the interim consolidated financial information, which describes the basis of preparation. The interim consolidated financial information has been prepared in accordance with the Group's accounting policies, which may differ from IFRS Accounting Standards. IFRS Accounting Standards are effective for listed companies for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2026. The Group is in the process of obtaining permission from the relevant regulatory authorities to defer the adoption of IFRS Accounting Standards. Our conclusion is not modified in respect of this matter.

Therefore, certain comparative amounts have been reclassified to conform with the current period presentation, as described in Note 5.

3.1 Group accounting - Investments in a subsidiary

Subsidiaries are entities (including structured entities) over which the Group has control. The Group controls an entity when the Group is exposed, or has rights, to variable returns from its involvement with the entity and has the ability to affect those returns through its power over the entity.

Subsidiaries are fully consolidated from the date on which control is transferred to the Group and are deconsolidated from the date that control ceases.

Intercompany transactions, balances and unrealised gains arising from transactions between group companies are eliminated. Unrealised losses are also eliminated unless the transaction provides evidence of an impairment of the transferred asset.

The financial statements of subsidiaries are prepared using accounting policies consistent with those adopted by the Group. Where necessary, adjustments are made to the financial information of subsidiaries to align accounting policies, classifications and presentation with those applied by the Group for consolidation purposes.

3.2 Inventories

Inventories are measured at the lower of cost and net realisable value. Inventories comprise crude palm oil ("CPO"), finished goods, work in progress ("WIP"), fertilisers, diesel, and other factory supplies held for sale in the ordinary course of business or for consumption in the production process. Finished goods primarily comprise palm waste products, fertiliser and biodiesel B5 products. Other factory supplies primarily comprise biodiesel B100, potassium nitrate, chemicals and palm seeds consumed in the production process or held for sale in the ordinary course of business.Certain inventories may be sold directly to customers or consumed in the Group's manufacturing operations. Accordingly, such items are classified within inventories as they are either held for sale in the ordinary course of business or intended for consumption in the production process. Cost is determined using the weighted average cost method and includes costs of purchase, costs of conversion and other costs incurred in bringing the inventories to their present location and condition. Costs of purchase comprise the purchase price, import duties, transportation costs and other directly attributable costs, net of trade discounts, rebates and similar items. Costs of conversion include direct labour and a systematic allocation of production overheads incurred in converting materials into finished goods.

Net realisable value represents the estimated selling price in the ordinary course of business less the estimated costs of completion and costs necessary to make the sale.

Inventories are reviewed periodically and allowances are recognised for obsolete, slow-moving, damaged or defective items when their carrying amounts are not expected to be recovered. Any write-down of inventories to net realisable value is recognised in the statement of income in the period in which the write-down occurs. Subsequent reversals of inventory write-downs are recognised when the circumstances that previously caused inventories to be written down no longer exist.

3.3 Deferred plantation cost

Deferred plantation costs represent costs directly attributable to the development and establishment of plantation projects prior to the commencement of commercial harvesting, production or other intended use. Such costs include land preparation and clearance costs, seedling costs, planting costs, fertiliser application costs, maintenance costs, labour costs and other expenditures directly attributable to the development of plantation areas. Deferred plantation costs include costs relating to palm plantations, pongamia plantations, acacia plantations and other plantation development projects undertaken by the Group.

Deferred plantation costs are accumulated on a project-by-project basis and are measured at cost less accumulated amortisation and impairment, if any.

Deferred plantation costs are recognised as non-current assets where future economic benefits are expected to be derived from the underlying plantation projects. Costs continue to be accumulated until the relevant plantation assets reach the stage at which they are available for their intended use. Palm plantations are generally ready for commercial harvesting approximately four years from planting, while pongamia and acacia plantations are generally ready for commercial harvesting approximately five to six years from planting.

Palm plantations

Costs incurred during the immature stage of palm plantations are capitalised as deferred plantation costs until the plantations are ready for commercial harvesting.

Upon commencement of commercial harvesting, the accumulated plantation development costs are transferred to mature palm plantations and are amortised as part of the cost of raw materials over the plantations estimated useful life of 26 years.

Pongamia plantations

Costs incurred during the immature stage of pongamia plantations are capitalised as deferred plantation costs until the plantations are ready for commercial harvesting.

Upon commencement of commercial harvesting, the accumulated plantation development costs are transferred to mature pongamia plantations and are amortised over the plantations' estimated useful life.

Acacia plantations

Costs incurred during the immature stage of Acacia plantations are capitalised as deferred plantation costs until the plantations are ready for commercial harvesting.

Upon commencement of commercial harvesting, the accumulated plantation development costs continue to be carried at cost. Revenues from harvesting are recognised when the harvested products are sold and the related accumulated plantation development costs are recognised in the statement of income when the related harvest is sold or depleted. No systematic amortisation is recognised.

Expenditures that do not meet the criteria for capitalisation are recognised in the statement of income as incurred.

3.4 Loan from shareholder

The loan from shareholder represents funds advanced by a shareholder to support the Group's working capital requirements. The loan is denominated in Thai Baht ("THB"), bears no interest, is unsecured and is repayable on demand.

The outstanding balance is translated into Lao Kip at the closing exchange rate at each reporting date. Exchange gains or losses arising from the translation of the loan balance are recognised in the statement of income. Accordingly, the loan is classified as a current liability as at the reporting date.

4 Estimates

The preparation of interim consolidated financial information requires management to make judgements, estimates and assumptions that affect the application of accounting policies and the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, incomes and expenses. Actual results may differ from these estimates. In preparing this interim consolidated financial information, significant judgements made by management in applying the Company's accounting policies and key sources of estimation uncertainty were the same as those that applied to the financial statements for the year ended 31 December 2025.
